Indian Wells, CA Follows Others in Choosing Comcate for Code Enforcement

Department Decides to Replace Prior Solution with Comcate for Better Citation Management

Indian Wells' single officer had been managing code enforcement violations for a population of close to 5,000 residents with software that he felt didn't meet his needs. After soliciting recommendations from peers in other cities, he selected Comcate's Code Enforcement Manager software.

Comcate software was designed by code enforcement professionals. The hosted software architecture is extremely affordable and can pay for itself through increased efficiency and processing of fines by the courts. Departments can fund the software investment with grants and use the increased citations collections to fund department activities. The software is also used to help track foreclosure violations and create reports for CDBG compliance.
