

My View

Over the last decade, Comcate has worked with hundreds of agencies, and frequently the work has consisted of supporting the agency as they define goals, as well as strategies for achieving those goals. Once goals are set, KPIs are identified to measure the progress of the agency relative to their goals.

As a result, we have developed many specific reports to provide agencies with the KPIs needed to track the results. Each report is unique, delivering specific information requested by the client. However, while they met the demand of each client, they were difficult to modify.

Now, we are pleased to be in the final stages of developing Dynamic Analytical Reports that allow agencies to produce the KPI reports they need without a custom report.

We look forward to continuing to work closely with your agency to identify your goals and KPIs and then producing the Dynamic Analytical Report that serves your purposes.

Dynamic Analytical Reporting for Strategic Planning

Your agency can utilize reporting for detailing your everyday operations and for broader demonstration of effectiveness of various programs. Your decisions and processes are also increasingly reviewed by policy makers and by your constituents, leading to requests for additional information. Reporting tools can help assess your programs and demonstrate your progress both internally and externally.
